Our Guest Speaker, Jim Millington

Jim Millington is President and CEO of SeedComm Canada Ltd., an Agri-Business firm providing consulting, trading services and project management in the feed, seed and food industries. Jim has over twenty-eight years of experience in relevant roles with a particularly strong background in understanding agricultural commodity supply chains in Canada and procurement related thereto on a global basis. He spent six years with the Maple Leaf Foods organization between 2004 and 2011 in two different management roles in which he was responsible for procurement and/or trading of key commodities for the company. He has extensive experience as a commodity trader and seed broker including international trade. He recently completed a contract as Director of Market Development for Soy Canada, an industry trade association, in which he took the lead in developing, managing and executing a proactive market development strategy for Canada's soybean sector.
